

Training for craftsmen manufacturing aromatic plants: project ERASMUS+ HERBARTIS

Seminario técnico

BARCELONA, martes 27 de junio de 2017

Presentation

In the Mediterranean area there are plenty of small-scale farms due to the land distribution characterized mainly by mountainous areas. Many entrepreneurs have seen medicinal and aromatic plants (MAPs), known as well as herbs, as an alternative crop to traditional ones, or as a new type of economic activity in rural areas.

But then they face to the reality they see that small productions are not enough to bulk-selling to wholesalers, and decide to elaborate products to sell directly to consumer. Then they have to deal with different aspects (processing, safety aspects, norms and procedures, marketing, etc.) that go far beyond those simply producing herbs.

The project ERASMUS+ HERBARTIS has developed a guidelines of methodologies for reaching a quality professional training addressed to adult people, by implementing a transnational pilot course (Spain, France, Italy and Portugal) of Handicraft production of food herbal products. In this seminar all the obtained results will be presented.
